

The Princess Proclamation

Project Summary

Some little girls are called princesses because they were born to a king and queen.
Others are because they married a prince.
And then there is this little girl.

No matter if she has a wealthy way of life or not, she is a princess because... Well, just because she is.

A TRUE princess knows who she is from an exceedingly early age.

I have made it my duty, as a self-proclaimed princess myself, to validate these little girls (with parents' permission) whenever and wherever our paths may cross. It takes one to know one (LOL), and each time I meet one I make sure to gift her with her rightful tiara. (I ALWAYS have them with me.)

Benefits

It brings me such joy to see their faces light up. I watch them stand taller and walk with more pride because they have been recognized and proclaimed to be what they already knew they were.

Making a little girl feel more confident today just may last a LIFETIME.

It's from the heart and they will never forget.

Budget

With a $1.00 plastic tiara I can make a little girl smile, and THAT is priceless.
